Design Professionals,

Earlier today the California Coastal Commission took final action on the Streamlining Ordinance, meaning that it is now in effect. We are currently preparing an information handout that will explain some of the finer details of the regulations. In the interim, we have prepared a list identifying the types of projects that are now eligible to be either exempt from design review or qualify for administrative design review. We are excited about the Streamlining Ordinance and look forward to working with you on its implementation.
